The bank statement was better than expected, the cash decrease being limited to $2.100,000 compared with early estimates today running as high as $5,000,000. The $4.224.800 loan contraction, in view of the heavy financial operations of the week, including the operations for the March settlements also was of good effect on sentiment. Large arrivals of gold were reported in London from South Africa, but $500,000 was withdrawn from the Bank of England for shipment to Argentina. The time money market here was called strong at a fractional advance in rates.

New York bids for the gold arrivals in London was considered unlikely, in view of the small change in conditions in the the small change in conditions in the ernational exchange market for seval weeks past. Total sales of bonds, par value, $748,

The entire uncertainty of speculative tentiment over the outlook is the inference suggested by the constant reversals of the movement of prices in the stock market during the week. A movement in the direction did not extend beyond a lay's trading.

The nature of the dis-sures to be made and the substan-tions presented were quite clearly force. closures to be made and the substan-tiations presented were quite clearly fore-seen, and this prospect has been one of the notable factors of depression in the market for some time past. Because the subject has been so long considered and acted upon there was some expectation that the actual opening of the inquiry and even more so its termination would lead to some recovery from the previous depression. The stock market speculation rarely concerns itself with past events. But the point of future interest regarding the investigation has to do with its results upon the public mind and upon the public and government activities toward the subjects of the inquiry. It was from this standpoint that operators in stocks were disposed to draw unfavorable augurtes. ad to some recovery from the previous

The wide publicity given to the testimony, the eager public interest displayed and the nature of the general criticism evoked by it of the methods and practices revealed made a portentious impression upon the financial world. A material growth of dissatisfaction with the powers enjoyed by the great corporations is considered inevitable. The contention of the government authorities which be considered inevitable. The contention of the government authorities which prompted the inquiry, that additional restraints should be placed upon the powers of corporations, especially over the issuance of capital, the purchase of securities other than their own and the making of charges for service to the public has been strengthened by the revelations brought out. New legislation ascordingly is believed to be certain. The hostility of the public toward corporations, even in its present stage, is the cause of many misgivings upon the part of those largely interested.

cordingly is believed to be certain. The hostility of the public toward corporations, even in its present stage, is the cause of many misgivings upon the part of those largely interested.

A discouraging effect is looked for on any general demand for the securities and the difficulties of securing new capital for projected enterprises are expected to be increased. The effect on foreign capital is especially feared and a corresponding check upon the recent flotation of American railroad notes in foreign money markets which was affording a material relief from the overstrain upon our supplies of capital.

Money has become firmer with the preparations for the March settlements. Sentiment upon the money outlook has become perceptibly more cheerful with the passage through the senate of the Aldrich currency bill.

Bonds were dull and generally heavy.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, March 2.—With the exception of a few minutes at the opening, when steady cables and relatively smail receipts in the northwest encouraged some buying, the market was weak all day. The firmness of the opening was quickly dispelled by the free selling by pit traders, who seemed to favor the idea that Monday's statistics would be in favor of the bears. The prediction was made that the world's shipments for the week will be in excess of the corresponding week last year and that the amount of breadstuffs on passage will show a moderate increase. The fact that the markets at Minnespolis, St. Louis and Kansas City were week also affected the local situation. The market closed weak. May opened unchanged to 16 higher at 76% sold off at 75% and closed 16 feeling.
